

Divorce Process

Communication Paths Vary by Type

Heather L. Locus, CPA, CFP®, CDFA®
 Owner, Wealth Manager, and Divorce Practice Group Leader
 (630) 875-4904 | hlocus@bdfllc.com | www.bdfllc.com

Which will get you divorced with the least amount of cost, complexity, & conflict? It's different for every family based on the issues in your unique case. The right one for you is the one that enables you to navigate the legal system in a manner that gives you the best financial and psychological result as possible to start your next chapter.

	Alternative Dispute Resolution		Traditional Litigation
	Mediation	Collaborative	Low-conflict	High-conflict
Cost	$-$$$	$$-$$$	$-$$$	$$$-$$$$
Time
Privacy
Opportunity To Be Heard
Control of Decision
Control of Process
Flexible Plan
Works if Case Involves Domestic Violence	 Unlikely	Maybe	 Yes	 Yes
Likelihood of Post-Divorce Court Issues	 Low/Med	 Low	 Med	 Med/High

Based on original chart copyright ©2017 Karen Covy, divorce advisor, attorney, mediator & coach

Rely on the advice of your divorce attorney as you are considering options. The experience and knowledge an attorney has related to the law, the potential judge and the outcomes in similar divorces will help guide your preference.

Disclosure: BDF does not provide legal, tax, insurance, social security or accounting advice. Clients of BDF should obtain their own independent tax, insurance and legal advice based on their circumstances. The information herein is provided solely to educate on a variety of topics, including wealth planning, tax considerations, insurance, estate, gift and philanthropic planning.